Missiles Choice Delayed

Pentagon Undecided Between Air Force, Army Types, Orders More Tests of Both

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon, still undecided between Army and Air Force versions of the intermediate range ballistic missile, will continue testing both on a speedup basis.

How soon a decision can be made, a spokesman said, will depend on what future tests show. A choice of one or the other, or a combination of both, had been sought within the next few weeks.

No reason was given for the change of plans except the need for more data. The announcement made no mention of Russia's firing of the first earth satellite, sent aloft by a powerful rocket.

Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy announced last night that he had approved a recommendation "to continue testing of the Jupiter and the Thor intermediate range ballistic missiles until a better technical basis is established for an IRBM program decision."

The recommendation came from William M. Holaday, head of a three-man committee which includes an Army and an Air Force general.

The decision to continue testing the Army's Jupiter as well as the Air Force's Thor into next year seemed at least a temporary victory for the Army. Former Secretary Charles E. Wilson had directed that the Air Force use whatever IRBM weapon system was evolved. And he also originally planned to let the Army's development program die off when funds for the Jupiter project were exhausted late next month.

ONE YEAR'S GAIN IN FIGHT ON POLIO—This map details by states the decline in paralytic polio in 1957 compared with the same period—January through the third week of September—1956. Only a few states, with a comparatively low number of cases, reported an increase this year. Figures are from a report of Secretary of Welfare Folsom.

Folsom reported that the number of paralytic polio cases this year up through Sept. 25 was only 1,576 compared with 5,241 cases up to this time in 1956. (AP Wirephoto map)

Glenda Reed Gets Honorable Mention For Christmas Doll

Miss Glenda Reed, 15, of 605 North Quincy, was awarded an honorable mention at the national finals of the Seventeen Magazine Christmas Doll Contest held Oct. 7 at the Hotel Pierre in New York City. The good-will competition, designed to provide needy children overseas with dolls made by teenage American girls, is sponsored in behalf of Foster Parents' Plan, Inc.

Judges were Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt; Julie Harris, star of Broadway's forthcoming production of "The Country Wife," Metropolitan Opera soprano Roberta Peters; and Edith Adams, star of Broadway's "Lili Abner."

For her prize winning entry, a fashion doll named "Bonnie-A-Bride," Miss Reed will receive a Lanvin Arpege Gift Set. Miss Reed's doll was entered in the nationwide competition through Flower's, the contest sponsor in Sedalia.

The quartet of noted judges made their selections from 600 prize dolls picked as winners in the regional Christmas Doll Contests, conducted recently in major U. S. cities by 200 leading department stores. This event marked the completion of a nationwide competition in which an estimated 45,000 American teen-age girls made dolls for their less fortunate sisters at home and abroad.

As a special feature of the judging, teen actress Robin Morgan presented dolls to Korean and Greek children. The latter symbolized the many thousands of underprivileged children who will be receiving the dolls as Yuletide gifts.

The judging climaxed the seventh annual Christmas Doll Contest which Seventeen inaugurated in 1951. This year the contest received its fifth successive endorsement from the U. S. Committee for UNICEF, largest international effort for child health. This is the only time the U. S. Committee—spokesman for this organization in the U. S.—has conferred recognition on a humanitarian effort outside the UN.

A special "grand prize" of a fifteen-day tour of Europe via Italian Airlines, from Nov. 16-Dec. 2, was awarded to the nation's top doll-maker.

See Satellite On 3 Passes

Man-Made Moon Nears End 1st Week Of Circling Earth

WASHINGTON (AP)—American sky watchers reported sighting the Russian earth satellite again today as it made three early morning passes over the United States.

The man-made moon, apparently undeterred by a shower of fragments, neared the end of its first week aloft still circling the earth once every 96.1 minutes.

The Naval Research Laboratory here said Sputnik made three high-speed passes over the United States this morning, and will return three times tonight.

The New Haven, Conn., moon-watch team, which first spotted the satellite yesterday, reported that it saw two objects streaking through the sky this morning—presumably Sputnik and a part of the rocket that propelled the moonlet into its orbit.

Observers at the Astrophysical Observatory of the Smithsonian Institution in Cambridge, Mass., also apparently caught a momentary glimpse of the satellite.

Two students at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N.Y., also said they sighted it shortly before dawn.

Sputnik has traveled more than 2 1/2 million miles, according to Soviet estimates, since the Russians shot it into the upper air last Friday.

Dr. Fred L. Whipple, director of the Cambridge Observatory, said there had been no observation to indicate a third object speeding around the globe. The Russians have said the satellite's protective nose cone also is orbiting, as well as the spent rocket.

Whipple voiced hope that a huge satellite tracking camera at Pasadena, Calif., will be ready when the sphere makes two passes over the Far West today.

Russia Makes Offer To Atom Energy Pool

VIENNA (AP)—Russia has offered to give 50 kilograms (110 pounds) of uranium 235 to the atom-for-peace pool of the new International Atomic Energy Agency.

The United States has promised at least 5,000 kilograms.

Prof. V. S. Emelyanov made the Soviet offer yesterday. The correspondent member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences said Russia has "the most advanced knowledge in the field of nuclear science" and is willing to share it with other nations.

An Eye-Witness Account

Russia's Midget Moon Appears Like Good, Gray Star in Hurry

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Russia's midget moon—or was it the third stage rocket?—appeared to this observer this morning like a good, gray star in a hurry.

I was standing on a hill beside the Harvard Observatory shortly before sunrise when the Soviet visitor streaked across the sky.

It looked like one of the fainter stars in the Big Dipper but, instead of standing still, it was moving to the right about halfway between the horizon and the zenith. I saw it for about five seconds and then its light appeared to snuff out gradually like the beam from a distant light-house.

The starry object seemed to move about twice the distance across the mouth of the Big Dipper in four or five seconds before it disappeared. It was heading toward the bright east light of dawn and did not reappear.

It seemed to be moving much slower than a so-called shooting star does when it hits the atmosphere, and it maintained a horizontal level.

We looked at our watches. The satellite or its rocket had appeared three minutes earlier than its predicted 5:24 EST arrival. We waited out the three minutes. A tiny pink cloud, lit by the still hidden sun, floated in the sky—by coincidence in the area where the moonlet had vanished. It seemed to say, "Sputnik was here."

Intend to Try Barring Hoffa

New York City Teamsters Contend Delegates Illegal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorneys for a rank-and-file Teamsters union group said they intend to apply for a federal court order later today barring James R. Hoffa from taking office as Teamsters president.

The law firm of Dodd, Kaplan and Schmidt said it will seek the order this afternoon from Federal District Court Judge F. Dickinson Letts.

The firm represents a 13-man Teamsters member group from New York city which has a suit pending challenging validity of the recent Teamsters union convention at Miami Beach, Fla., on grounds delegates were illegally handpicked to rig the union elections for Hoffa.

Hoffa and a slate of candidates were overwhelmingly elected as new officers at the convention. Hoffa is due to take over the union presidency from Dave Beck, who has said he will resign any time Hoffa wants to assume the helm of the scandal-ridden union.

Hoffa and Beck both have figured prominently in the scandals developed by the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee. Because of the disclosures the AFL-CIO is expected to suspend the Teamsters from AFL-CIO membership on Oct. 24.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark), chairman of the investigating committee, said earlier that Beck enabled Hoffa to win the Miami election by dictating disregard of the union's constitution.

The senator said records of the convention's Credentials Committee "reveal some situations which are just plain scandalous."

The committee subpoenaed the records immediately after Hoffa's election. It is inquiring into charges that delegates had been hand-picked to rig the election for Hoffa, as alleged in a court action which sought unsuccessfully to block the election.

Hoffa has been accused by McClellan and other Senate investigators of misuse of union funds and underworld connections.

In Detroit, Hoffa disputed McClellan's contention that the union constitution had been disregarded.

He said President Beck and the union's Executive Board were charged with interpretation of the constitution. Beck gave his interpretation, Hoffa said, and it was then approved by the Executive Board and later by the full convention.

"How far do we have to go?" he asked.

Earlier, he had told a welcoming crowd at the Detroit airport that "we will be faced next year with the roughest and toughest labor legislation in history."

He added, in obvious reference to his own election as union president: "If they can pass restrictive legislation solely because they do not like the man who has been elected, then they will be passing legislation on a vindictive and personality basis."

After the committee subpoenaed the convention records, union officials reported the documents had been thrown out by a hotel maid who subsequently died.

Many were salvaged, however, and Joseph Konow, secretary of the convention Credentials Committee, delivered to the Senate group what he called "substantially all" of the records.

McClellan said in a statement that the records turned over to the committee "are so incomplete as to be almost useless." He also said that preliminary examination of the records that were furnished "revealed a shocking situation."

A 21-year-old farmer admitted he and four others threw the eggs because letters they had written to Benson weren't answered.

Foss said he would order state attorney general's office to prosecute. Atty. Gen. Phil Saunders said today, however, he has not yet received a report on the incident.

Benson became a target again today, this time for a verbal shelling by Sen. Symington (D-Mo.). In a speech prepared for a gathering at the complicating contest, Symington said the theory that lower farm price supports will cut production is unsound and Agriculture Department officials know it.

Sedalia Awarded $74,850 for Injury In Railroad Accident

EAST ST. LOUIS (AP)—A Sedalia railroad was awarded $74,850 in city court here for the loss of three fingers in a work accident in June 1955.

Leo Twenter, construction foreman for the Missouri Pacific Railroad, injured his hand while riding on a motorized handcar with other members of his construction crew.

The car and a similar car collided and in the wreck several railroad torpedoes exploded, injuring Twenter. The accident occurred near Napton, Mo.

Twenter had asked a $75,000 verdict. He was awarded the $74,850 by a city court jury after a three-day trial. The jury deliberated an hour.

Leo Twenter's residence here is at 1310 South Osage.

AEC Reports British Atom Unit Halted

LONDON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Authority announced today Britain's major atomic reactor pile producing plutonium for nuclear weapons has been knocked out of operation "for some months" by a rare accident.

The accident occurred at Sinder scale plutonium factory in Cumberland, near the Scottish border.

Its machinery is driven by power generated from Calder Hall, which Britain claims is the first plant in the world producing atomic energy for peaceful uses.

An atomic energy spokesman said a number of uranium cart-ridges yesterday became "overheated to the point of red heat. Some oxydization of uranium has occurred. There is no evidence of there being any hazard to the public."

Nevertheless, workers estimated to number about 200 were ordered to "remain under cover" in the factory area.

The spokesman said experts are checking the area to see if there has been any increase in radioactivity.

"Combustion is being held up," the atomic authority said in a statement. "The staff are now injecting water on it from above and the temperature has started to fall."

"At this stage it is not possible to give the cause of the accident," the spokesman asserted. "It is likely that pile will be out of operation for a period of some months."

Gunmen Rob, Whip Woman And Kill Man

Estimates of Gang At Post Office Vary; One Is Shot Later

PAISLEY, Ore. (AP)—Gunmen walked into this little ranch town's post office yesterday. In the next 15 minutes, they robbed it, pistol-whipped a woman and killed a 60-year-old man who tried to stop them.

After the gunmen fled in a car, a posse of more than 150 rifle-bearing men set out after the gunmen. Roadblocks sprang up.

The gunmen abandoned their car and fled on foot through the brushy prairie.

A man later was shot in the shoulder by the posse near a ranch. At a hospital in nearby Lakeview, under police guard, he told officers his name is Donald Ferguson. He said he is 32 and from Bakersfield, Calif. He said nothing more.

State police said they were not certain how many persons were in the gang that robbed the post office and killed John T. Lawson, a plumber. Estimates of the number of gunmen ranged from two to four.

Lawson yesterday was walking near the post office when an unidentified woman shouted that it was being robbed.

Lawson ran to his car and grabbed a rifle. As he reached the front door of the post office, one of the gunmen shot once and killed him.

Mrs. Anita Bannister, the postmaster, said that 15 minutes earlier a man entered the post office and flashed a pistol.

"He threatened to kill me several times . . . pushing me around and hitting me on the head with his gun. Three women came into the post office after that and that man just lined them up against the wall," she said.

A second gunman later entered, took money from the safe and left. It was then Mrs. Bannister heard the shot.

Mrs. Bannister said the gunman got only a small amount of money and an undetermined number of blank money orders.

Other Is Recovering

BOSTON (AP)—A 14-year-old girl may be illegal to remove an organ from the body of a healthy minor child, the Massachusetts Supreme Court had to rush consent to the operation on Doris.

Surgical teams, who have pioneered in this field of organ transplanting at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, conducted all five such operations to date.

The doctors donated their services as a gift to science.

Dolores was carried to the hospital in a coma. She underwent the surgery barely in time to save her life. Now she is up and about and was described today as apparently far on the way to recovery.

Later on, she must undergo two more operations—for the removal of each of her own—now useless—kidneys.

Pancake Day On Saturday

Xi Omega and CAP Members Hope for Good Appetites

Members of the Xi Omega Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority are hoping that many Sedalians will have healthy appetites for pancakes and all the trimmings next Saturday when that organization joins forces with the local Civil Air Patrol in sponsoring a "Pancake Day" all day at the Sedalia Memorial Airport one mile east on Highway 50.

The young ladies' interest in the project next Saturday lies only in the fact that their share of the proceeds will go to one of the community's most progressive health, welfare, and educational organizations, the Crippled Children's Center.

The public's support of the pancake affair at the city's airport will aid immeasurably in the financial program of the center. The center is a non-profit civic venture. It costs approximately $1,000 per year for each child attending, and there is a constant need for public financial support to keep it in operation. Since the Crippled Children's Center is rapidly becoming known as one of Missouri's finest institutions of its type, Xi Omega will be trying to do its part Saturday in maintaining this reputation.

The "Pancake Day" will begin at 6 a. m. and will continue throughout the entire day until 8 p.m. Not only will the patrons of the pancake fry have one of America's most favorite menus, but there will be entertainment of all types throughout the day. There will be periodic drills and demonstrations by the local CAP, exhibits of model airplanes in action, a hobby shop, a Whiteman Air Force display and several other surprises.

One of the featured attractions will be frequent appearances during the day of the new, beautiful model for the "Steve Canyon" comic strip drawn by Milt Caniff.

Automobiles are being supplied by most of the car dealers in Sedalia as means of transportation for those who will not have access to a ride to the airport. There will be a large contingent of cars stationed at the corners of Third and Ohio throughout the day for this purpose.

The ways and means committee of Xi Omega is helping to organize the "Pancake Day". Deane Thompson is chairman and will be assisted by Mrs. Margaret Belt, publicity chairman, Mrs. Margaret Fisher, Miss Lois Gordon, Miss Ann Pack, Mrs. Rosalie Pressley and Mrs. Malissa McClung.

President of the chapter is Mrs. Betty Padgett; vice-president, Mrs. Ruth Moore; secretary, Mrs. Belt; and treasurer, Miss Ann Pack.

It is the plan of Xi Omega to make "Pancake Day" an annual event, and each year this service and social organization will turn its proceeds to some worthy cause.

19 Protestant and Catholic Churches of Sedalia Are Participating COMMUNITY RELIGIOUS CENSUS Sunday Afternoon, Oct. 13th

This Religious Census is the first to be taken in more than ten years and its purpose is to secure information regarding the religious affiliations and interests of the people of our community. Hundreds of volunteer church workers representing nineteen Protestant and Catholic churches will be calling on approximately 8,000 homes in this work. You will find these religious census takers to be cordial and courteous. They will not argue about churches or religion, nor will they criticize any church or religion. All the information they seek is listed on the form printed below which is an exact reproduction of the Community Religious Census Card . . . 1957.

Your courteous reception and accurate response to questions asked by the volunteer census takers will be appreciated by them and the various church groups represented in this task.

If you prefer, you may fill in this reproduced Community Religious Census Card and give it to the census taker when you are called upon Sunday afternoon, or place it inside your screen door if you will not be home.

Odd Balls Up North, Too

After the fracas in Arkansas recently it appeared that the "odd balls" were concentrated down in Little Rock what with physiognomies wrinkled with hatred, women screaming and tearing their hair and altogether acting like a bunch of maniacs.

But the odd balls are not all city folks. Governor Joe Foss, of South Dakota, says they have come up there in his area. This time they are farmers who don't like Ezra Benson, secretary of agriculture. Just because he didn't write some of them a letter they threw eggs at him during his speech in Sioux Falls yesterday.

So there must be some truth to what Dr. Jordan says in an adjoining column on this page today: "One out of every two hospital beds is occupied by a mental patient." Only not all of them have reached the hospital yet. If they did there'd not be enough room to take care of them.

So many things to raise one's blood pressure these days. For instance that danged leaky faucet in the bathtub. All anyone does is swear at it instead of calling a plumber.

Ever figure how much a leaking faucet costs? If most people did there wouldn't be 24 million worn-out faucets in American homes.

A little bit of water seeping from the faucet or showerhead not only causes irritation but is cash down the drain. Any journeyman plumber will tell you that. If 100 drops of water come from your faucet every minute, the Plumbing Fixture Manufacturers Association figures the cost to you is about $1.24 a year; 200 drops a minute cost $2.48 a year; a steady stream 1/32 inch costs $18.04 a year; a stream 1/16 inch costs $77; a stream 1/8 inch costs $251.70. Then, too, because of fuel costs, the expense is about doubled when hot water is lost. We invite Manager Reed of the Sedalia Water Company to get out his pencil and figure to back us up.

Plumbers will also tell you that an un-repaired faucet will make a small leak into a big one. And when there is a trace of iron or other mineral, leaking faucets can leave ugly stains which may permanently mar fixtures.

There's nothing like a leaky faucet and what it can do to the pocketbook to get your mind off the Arkansas and South Dakota odd balls. As a distraction we're going to miss the drips after the plumber comes out.

Witch Hunting Scares Away Scientists

By DREW PEARSON
WASHINGTON — One of the least talked about but very real reasons why the United States is lagging behind Russia in scientific development, according to top scientists, is the witch-hunting tactics of U. S. Government agencies. Scientists have been investigated, hounded, and discouraged from working for the Government.

Most notable case was that of Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, in charge of the Government's atomic project at Los Alamos, N. M., who did such a notable job of speeding production of the atomic bomb. He was publicly investigated on the order of Chairman Lewis Strauss of the AEC and his government security clearance removed. Oppenheimer had been entrusted with the most vital secrets of the war, yet after the war he was considered a security risk.

His inventive brain is now lost to the Government.

While this is a loss, a much greater loss was the effect on other less-known scientists. An untold number have either got out of Government projects or shied away from working for the Government.

It happens that scientists tend to be inquisitive free thinkers. They have challenging minds. If they hadn't they probably wouldn't be able to develop such revolutionary projects as the A-bomb, H-bomb, and earth satellites. And they don't relish the prospect of having their ideas scrutinized by Admiral Strauss, Senator McCarthy, or Vice President Nixon when the latter was master-minding the House Committee on un-American activities.

Dr. Urey Hounded

The public has little conception of the lengths to which witch-hunting has been carried.

When Dr. Harold Urey of the University of Chicago, one of the original builders of the A-bomb, was traveling through Europe last year, he found himself trailed by State Department agents. Finally he demanded a showdown, called State Department officials into his office and wanted to know why they were hounding him. They apologized.

Dr. Urey did the research on heavy water, on uranium 235, and discovered the Hydrogen atom of atomic weight 2. He is one of the most eminent physicists in the world. He had contributed greatly to the defense of his country during the war. And if he was trailed by State Department agents you can get some idea of what may happen to younger, less-known scientists.

Here is the roll-call of younger scientists, some of whom made mistakes, but all of whom were hounded out of Government with repercussions which discouraged other scientists:

Frank Oppenheimer, brother of Robert, who worked on the A-bomb project at the University of California, was investigated by the House un-American Activities Committee, and lost his Government clearance. Oppenheimer admitted he made mistakes in his political associations.

Guest Editorial

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR: Distasteful Politics. When it comes to politics there is a tendency to say women are well-informed, make good organizers, vote intelligently and more frequently than men — but don't, oh, don't, elect a woman to top office. The theory seems to be that with the granting of suffrage anywhere in the world women are equal but men are more equal.

Three villages in India are putting some serious crimps in this theory.

These, one in east, one in north, and one in west India, are ruled by elected women officials. Mahendranagar, in Bombay State, has a seven-member council — all women.

Before the last elections early this year Mahendranagar had no roads, no irrigation, no water or sewage system, no electric lights, no sanitation. It had, in fact, nothing but a poor cluster of mud huts.

Now, with the women's council barely started on its program, the village has a new street lighted with electric lights, an electrically filled water tank, five irrigation wells, a library fund, adult literacy classes, and a radio in the council chamber. Other improvements, including a judicial and police staff, are planned.

And the village men? They approve heartily, as apparently do the men of the other two women-ruled villages. But why shouldn't they?

A brilliant scientist, he is now unable to get a scientific job and is working out on a small cattle ranch in Colorado.

Bernard Peters, a refugee from Hitler and a naturalized citizen, worked on the atomic project during the war, was investigated for his political associations, lost his Government clearance and is now teaching at the Tata Research Institute in Bombay, India.

David Bohm of the University of California is one of the leading authorities on the behavior of thermonuclear gases. This is of vital importance right now. After a Congressional investigation he lost his security clearance, and is now teaching in Israel.

Joseph Weinberg, better known as Mr. X, a brilliant scientist who once was a member of the Communist party, worked on the A-bomb project at the University of California, lost his job, was prosecuted for perjury, but acquitted. Unable to get a scientific job, he is now working for an optical company.

Refugees Built A-bomb

Prof. Linus Pauling of California Tech is a Nobel prize winner and one of the most brilliant chemists in the world. But because he signed a petition to stop nuclear tests, Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare Oveta Hobby, for whom he was doing some research, abruptly stopped that research. She then tried to maneuver with Cal Tech to have the work continued without Dr. Pauling being connected with it — all because he exercised his freedom as a citizen in opposing A-bomb tests.

The National Science Foundation, however, made sure that the work was continued, and the new Secretary of HEW, Marion Folsom, has now reinstated Dr. Pauling's research.

Some of these scientists were indiscreet. Some unwise. Some were naturalized citizens. Some were possible security risks. But whether they were right or wrong, the Government policy of witch-hunting has discouraged innumerable other scientists from working for the Government.

"It isn't necessarily the world-famous scientists who count," Dr. Urey told me. "It's the little scientists. You never can tell when some young, struggling scientist the world has never heard of will come up with a substantial contribution. These are the men who are being scared out of working for the Government."

Note — Most people have forgotten it, but the atomic bomb was not strictly an American invention. It was produced in the U.S.A. because Roosevelt was wise enough to make this country the haven of refugees from Hitler, many of them Jewish. The men who produced the A-bomb were Einstein, a German; Szilard, a Hungarian; Fermi, an Italian; Bohr, a Dane; together with Urey and Oppenheimer, Americans.

Julius Klein Replies

Maj. Gen. Julius Klein, of Chicago, has issued a statement in reply to a Drew Pearson column of August 14.

The statement said, in part:

"Mr. Pearson's statement that Herman J. Abs, prominent German banker, was last August 'ensconced in a suite at the Carlton Hotel in Washington,' to lobby for the return of German property, is the most flagrant non-truth. Mr. Abs has not been in the United States since last January, when he was a guest of the New York Citizens' Budget Commission.

"Pearson refers to Abs as a banker 'under the Nazi regime.' Good Germans, as well as bad, had to live under the Hitler rule. Some died fighting Hitler while others, like Chancellor Adenauer and Abs, survived to bring about a New Germany which is considered one of our strongest and staunchest allies.

"Mr. Pearson is right when he assumes that I favor the return of German assets, but he is again in error when he implies that I am lobbying for or having a paid assignment to work for return. I am registered with the Department of Justice to work on advancing the principle of sanctity of private property.

"Mr. Pearson overlooks the fact that retribution of confiscated assets would be incompatible with our avowed principles. Moreover, he fails to recognize that violation of this sanctity has a direct effect on the United States' investments abroad, which include a minimum of 30 billion dollars in private foreign investments. Sanctity of private property is a reciprocal two-way street for us and the entire Free World . . ."

Sounds on Verge of Tantrum

Khrushchev Needs to Avoid Hysteria

By ED CREAGH
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — As President Eisenhower has said: there is no use getting hysterical.

It is to be hoped that Russia's Nikita S. Khrushchev was listening to the President's words and will heed them.

For the Soviet party boss sounds on the verge of a terrible tantrum in his latest outburst. And, however much U.S. officials may try to downgrade the Russians' rocket-launched satellite, there is no doubt Khrushchev has the weapons to start World War III at any moment.

What the Soviet leader has done, in an interview with a New York Times representative, is to announce a Khrushchev doctrine to counter the Eisenhower Doctrine on the Middle East. But with this difference:

The United States, well knowing the risks, went on record at the last session of Congress as being willing to help any Middle East country which might be threatened with outside (meaning, for the most part, Communist) aggression. There was a big "if" in the declaration on which Eisenhower and Congress finally got together. It said the United States would step in only if the threatened country asked for help.

Now comes Khrushchev with no such "if." He unleashes a tirade against the "ruling circles" in this country. He says they are "intensely pushing" Turkey toward a war with Soviet-backed Syria. He makes it plain that Russia will use force, if necessary, to defend its interests. And he sounds as if he were talking about a war which could start tomorrow.

"If war breaks out," Khrushchev says, "we are near Turkey and you are not. When the guns begin to fire, the rockets can be flying and then it will be too late to think about it."

The longer Khrushchev talks, the more incredible he gets. He says at one point that Secretary of State Dulles talks a lot about God but doesn't behave like a Christian. Some of Dulles' critics in this country might not find that too hard to swallow. But in the next breath Khrushchev says:

"We Communists, as atheists, are guided by the most humane considerations in relations between human beings. We seek to do all that is best for people. A Communist is happy when he seeks to achieve happiness for all peoples."

How many millions have suffered and died under the Communist "happiness" program?

If this mishmash could be dismissed as only the ramblings of a loudmouth, the world would be better off.

As it happens, though, Khrushchev is top man in a country which has made it abundantly clear it has plenty of advanced weapons and knows how to fire them. It also happens that Khrushchev, far from talking through vodka fumes, was weighing every syllable. The Russians held up release of the interview long enough to make sure he had said precisely what he meant to say. And the Times man, James Reston, reports Khrushchev was "more violent on the subject of Turkey than on anything else."

What can you do about a man like Khrushchev, besides build more missile-launchers in the right place?

One thing might be to tell the world exactly what role this country has been playing in the Middle East, and to document it in every possible way. This is assuming that our role has been honorable and that we have nothing to be ashamed of. We could make our case by matching Khrushchev's frankness—but not, as Eisenhower would be the first to say, his note of near-hysteria.

Ruth Millett Says

He Will Look Elsewhere When Home Life Is Boring

Any wife who thinks her husband doesn't spend as much time at home as he could ought to ask herself a few questions.

One. Is our home as neat, attractive, comfortable and restful as I can make it?

Two. Would I be ashamed if company found me looking the way I usually look when my husband comes home from work? If you don't make an effort to look as well for your husband as you do for others, you are making a mistake.

Three. When my husband is at home for an evening is there anything more stimulating for him to do than sit until bedtime watching TV? Part of any homemaker's job is seeing that a home affords refreshing recreation — hobbies, games, music, entertaining friends, projects for fixing up the house and yard.

The Art of Conversation

Four. When my husband comes home do I have anything to talk to him about besides household problems, the children, small annoyances and petty gossip? If not, chances are you aren't leading any life of your own. A woman who reads, keeps up with local and national affairs and does some community work has plenty of interesting things to talk about.

Five. Am I a good hostess and does my husband know that his friends are always welcome in his own home? If not, a man who is sociable and gregarious is bound to try to find companionship in clubs and organizations.

No wife has ever been able to nag a husband into spending more time at home. But many a woman has managed to make a man prefer his home to any other place.

New York City Mayor Says Juvenile Gang Fighting Is Ending

NEW YORK — Mayor Robert F. Wagner says organized street fighting between city juvenile gangs "is getting to be a thing of the past."

Speaking yesterday on a filmed TV program, the mayor credited City Youth Board activities with helping to eliminate street gang warfare.

He said the board is maintaining contact with 60 of the city's 80-odd "fighting gangs" and that "in contrast with other gangs we haven't reached yet, not one of these 60 gangs has had a rumble in 18 months."

The Youth Board is concentrating on areas with a high proportion of delinquency, Wagner said, "and it has a mechanism for locating families who need its help, whether they know it or not."

Autumn Weather Seen For Most of Nation

By The Associated Press
Generally pleasant autumn weather was the outlook today for most of the nation although rain continued to dampen areas in the Far West.

Stormy weather in northern California has caused more than a million dollars damage to agriculture, roads and power lines. Heaviest damage was in Napa and Sonoma counties north of San Francisco. The rainfall measured more than 6 inches in some places.

Only minor wet spots were reported in other parts of the country. Northerly winds blowing across the Great Lakes resulted in scattered sprinkles from the northern Appalachians into the upper Ohio Valley.

Essential To His Job

So Ike Plays Golf For Recreation; Ignores Critics

By Esther Van Wagoner Tufty
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—With the President on vacation in Newport, his critics go after him again for his golf-playing.

Many jibes ink the President, but he isn't a mite disturbed by what's said or printed against the hours he spends on the golf course. Politically, he feels that his public pre-campaign explanation, that if elected to a second term he would have to do less work because of his heart condition, takes care of that.

Always athletic dating back to his football days at West Point, he is encouraged rather than stopped by his medical advisors to get out on the fairways often. This surprises many of his well-wishers, who are alarmed that their Ike is playing more golf than he did before his first heart attack some two years ago.

He isn't even ruffled when questions at his press conference seem to indicate many voters think he does a lot of playing, usually out at Burning Tree Country Club.

At a press conference just before leaving for golfing and hunting down on the Georgia plantation of former Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey, he said "I insist on going for a bit of recreation every once in a while. . . I do that because I think it is necessary to keep up the state of fitness essential to this job."

He looks very fit. He says he feels better because his ileitis operation last year got rid of his frequent stomach upsets.

Every day he gets plenty of rest as well as recreation. He sleeps longer in the morning, takes a nap at noon and rarely accepts evening engagements and is in bed around 10 o'clock.

Dr. Jordan Says

Over Half Hospital Beds Occupied By Mental Cases

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.

Some of the facts about mental illness are startling. Included in the information compiled by the National Health Education Committee is an estimate that 16 million people in the United States alone are suffering from some form of mental disorder.

Slightly more than one out of every two hospital beds is occupied by a mental patient. Thus about 54 out of 100 of the nearly 1,400,000 patients occupying hospital beds on any given average day were there for mental reasons. Altogether, during the past year, about 2½ million men, women and children were treated for some form of mental disorder in a mental hospital.

All but a small proportion of mentally diseased patients are treated in public hospitals supported by a state, county, city, or the Veterans Administration. Only about two out of 100 are cared for in private institutions. Each year about 290,000 new patients are admitted to mental hospitals or psychiatric units of general hospitals.

The cost of mental illness is staggering. It is estimated that the direct cost of mental illness today is in the neighborhood of $4,170,000,000 a year. This is made up of expenditures for maintenance of hospitals, compensation and pension payments to veterans, construction of new mental hospital facilities and, largest of all, loss in earnings of patients admitted to mental hospitals.

About one-quarter of first admissions to public mental hospitals consist of patients with a disease known as schizophrenia and about the same number are patients with hardening of the arteries of the brain and related brain disorders. The former is more common in youth and the latter in the older years of life.

It is well known that many mental hospitals are overcrowded. There is a great need for more beds, more psychiatrists, more nurses and all the other requirements for the care of the mentally ill. We all have a responsibility to bear in this regard.

However, I should like to close this discussion by emphasizing the need for research which will help the mentally ill to recover more completely and more rapidly. Anything which can be accomplished along these lines will reduce the need for beds, medical care and, of course, the cost.

Certainly, some progress has been made and treatment has been improving. Among the recent methods of improved treatment are the use of tranquilizing drugs which have proved extremely useful in many instances.

But it is only by further research that progress can be made in this area. In the even more important field of prevention of mental disorder we have so far accomplished little.

Immeasurably Confident

Milwaukee's Miracle Complete; Magician: Haney; Wand: Burdette

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP)—Milwaukee's miracle is now complete. The miracle man is Fred Haney with Lew Burdette his magic wand.

Just five years after the franchise shift from Boston, the Braves rose from a frustrated, badly disorganized seventh-place team to a world championship outfit with a bright future.

Make no mistake about it. This was a standout team that came from behind repeatedly and overcame crippling handicaps to dethrone a good New York Yankee team in seven sizzling World Series games. This was a young team too. The starting Braves' nine that shut out the Yankees 5-0 yesterday behind the remarkable seven-hit pitching of Burdette averaged 26.4 years to 31.4 for the American League champions.

The confidence gained in defeating the Yankees, especially in their own back yard, is immeasurable. The Braves always had the horses. What they lacked was experience and confidence. They have both now.

In addition, the Braves are a highly efficient organization. They have one of the strongest minor league farm systems and own some of the outstanding young players in the country. No wonder Frank Lane, general manager of the runner-up St. Louis Cardinals, remarked ruefully yesterday:

"This was the year to beat the Braves. Next year I'm afraid they'll be unstoppable."

It is not difficult to view the Braves as a championship team for years to come.

How Burdette fared in the final game, and in the entire series, for that matter, is now one of the more glorious pages in World Series history.

The 30-year-old right-hander from Nitro, W.Va., who now makes his home in Sarasota, Fla., not only became the first starter since Cleveland's Stan Coveleskie to win three games in one series, but he also became the first hurler in 52 years to turn in two shutouts. The last one? Christy Mathewson, who blanked the Philadelphia Athletics three times in 1905.

Cold figures don't tell half the story of Burdette's truly remarkable pitching performance. The tall, sinewy right-hander walked only one batter — and that was intentional. He was rarely behind the hitters as only four Yankees reached the three-ball count. Not until two out in the ninth inning did a Yankee runner reach third. With the exception of Hank Bauer's leadoff double, no extra-base hit was made off him.

Burdette wound up with 24 consecutive scoreless innings against the American League champs. All this with only two days rest. No wonder his agent, Frank Scott, disclosed today that the rubber-armed redhead, whose 1937 salary was only $15,000, stands to earn around $20,000 in personal appearances and endorsements during the coming winter.

Burdette received magnificent fielding support from his teammates, especially Eddie Mathews at third base. He received timely hitting support from Hank Aaron, Bob Hazle, Del Crandall and Mathews.

Mathews, a batting bust in the first three games, delivered the key hit—a third-inning double to right off starter and loser Don Larsen which drove in the first two Milwaukee runs.

Aaron, hit safely in every game, drove in a run yesterday and wound up leading all hitters on both teams with .393.

Hazle started the crushing four-run rally in the third with a hit, his first of the series. Crandall unlimbered the coup de grace with a home run into the left field seats.

It was the staunch Braves' defense, however, that surprised the Yankees the most. The scouting reports had led them to believe that the Braves were a slow, clumsy, lack-luster outfit in the field, devoid of fire and imagination. The Braves proved they were anything but that.

Mathews played a spectacular

Berra Set 4 Records In Series

NEW YORK (AP)—Yogi Berra, catcher for the losing New York Yankees, set four standards as 11 records were broken and 16 tied in the 1937 World Series won by the Milwaukee Braves.

Included in the new marks were new attendance and net receipt standards.

Individual records broken:

Most games played, total series — 54, Yogi Berra, New York AL (old record 52 by Phil Rizzuto, New York AL).

Most hits, total series, one club — 55, Yogi Berra, New York AL (old record 54 by Joe DiMaggio, New York AL).

Most consecutive games, one or more hits, total series—14, Hank Bauer, New York AL (old record 13 by Frank Schulte, Chicago NL, 1906-08 and Harry Hooper, Boston AL, 1915-18).

Most series played, catcher—9, Yogi Berra, New York AL (Broke record shared with Bill Dickey, New York AL).

Most games caught, total series — 52, Yogi Berra, New York AL (extended own record).

Most consecutive innings pitched no player reaching first base, total series—11 1-3, Don Larsen, New York AL (extended own record).

Most series eligible as player and coach — 17, Frank Crosetti, New York AL, 9 as player, 8 as coach (broke record shared with Bill Dickey, New York AL).

Team records broken:

Most bases on balls, game, both clubs—19, New York AL 11, and Milwaukee NL 8, third game, old record 16, New York AL 9, New York NL 7, Oct. 2, 1936.

Lowest batting average, seven-game series, World Series winner — .209, Milwaukee NL (old record .216, by New York AL, 1932).

Miscellaneous records broken:

Largest attendance, series—394,712 (old record 389,763 by New York AL vs Brooklyn NL, 1947).

Largest net receipts, series — $2,475,978.94 (old record $2,337,515.34 by Brooklyn NL vs New York AL, 1955).

Milwaukee Players See Higher Pay

NEW YORK (AP)—Milwaukee's Braves not only took the fat end of the World Series split, but as individuals they also were looking forward today to a bright green future. Just about every player on the new world champions has a talking point when contract-signing time comes around.

Lew Burdette, that right-hander who showed up three times too often as far as the Yanks were concerned, was doing more than looking ahead. He was talking in the Braves' dressing room after pitching yesterday's 5-0 victory that clinched the series for Milwaukee. Lou Perini, Braves' owner, was hugging Burdette, and a photographer was taking his picture. "Send me a dozen of those prints for contract signing next spring," Lew told the photographer while looking at the Braves' boss.

third base from start to finish. Logan's short-fielding was not as sensational but equally effective.

Covington proved the defensive surprise of the series. Saddled with a good-hit, no-field reputation, the young left fielder left the Yankees gasping with two glittering catches and a tremendous throw that cut off at least four runs.

Crandall was the rock of Gibraltar behind the plate and his strong throwing arm mowed down all three would-be Yankee base stealers.

Frank Torre, a real fancy dan around first base, saved his infield mates embarrassment with his dirt-scooping pickups of their sometimes errant throws.

Practically everybody expected the Braves' defense to crack. Instead it was the Yankee fielding that collapsed. The team as a whole made six errors, twice as many as Milwaukee did. Three of the miscues came yesterday and one of them opened the gates to the four Milwaukee runs in the third.

The culprit was Tony Kubek, the 20-year-old Milwaukee boy. After Hazle had cracked a one-out single off Larsen in the third, Logan rapped a hard grounder to the versatile youngster at third base. Kubek, with an easy inning-ending double play in sight, threw too high to second, forcing Jerry Coleman off the bag. Coleman's throw from an awkward position was too late to get Logan at first.

Mathews followed with his two-run double. Then Aaron and Covington singled and Torre drove in another run with a grounder and Milwaukee had a 4-0 lead. Milwaukee's other score came in the eighth when Crandall boomed a drive off the left-hander Tommy Byrne over Enos Slaughter's head into the left field stands. Byrne was New York's fifth pitcher.

Stengel pulled out all the stops. Besides restoring the injured Bill Skowron to first, he played Mickey Mantle the whole game in center field. Nothing helped, however. Mantle's best was a harmless single in the sixth. Bobby Shantz, Art Ditmar and Tom Sturdivant also saw action on the mound.

But coaches from major teams, with the possible exception of Nebraska, reported today they expect their squads to be close to top shape physically. Nebraska has had half its 50-man squad affected by the germ. But the disease apparently has run its course at Notre Dame and Oklahoma.

Army and Notre Dame, resuming a series that was abandoned 10 years ago because the almost-hysterical interest in their games put too much pressure on players and coaches, are expected to fill Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium almost to its 102,000 capacity.

Michigan and Michigan State, playing a key game in the open race for the Big Ten championship, will appear before another 100,000 at Ann Arbor and 75,000 will jam the Dallas Cotton Bowl to see national leader Oklahoma go after its 43rd consecutive victory, against Texas.

Ohio State likely will draw its usual 80,000 for a homecoming game at Columbus against Illinois. The Rice stadium at Houston (capacity 70,000) and the Stanford stadium at Palo Alto, Calif. (90,000), should be pretty well filled when these teams meet Duke and Washington State, respectively.

YANKEE MIXUP AT SECOND—New York Yankees' Hank Bauer slides back to second as Enos Slaughter (17) runs for the bag in a mixup during the first inning of the final World Series game at Yankee stadium in New York. Milwaukee Braves' Johnny Logan, left, and Felix Mantilla cover, Joe Paparella umpires. Bauer led off the inning with a double and Slaughter, next up, tapped back to the mound, trapping Bauer in a rundown. It wound up with both Bauer and Slaughter standing on second. Slaughter was tagged out by Logan. The Braves won the Series, 5-0.

Flu May Put Lid on Size Of Crowds

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

Six college football games tomorrow likely will attract about half a million spectators if the influenza germ doesn't cut too big a swath among fans.

The bug already has been felt by the players themselves. It put a damper on workouts by a number of major colleges this week and forced cancellation of several small college and high school games.

But coaches from major teams, with the possible exception of Nebraska, reported today they expect their squads to be close to top shape physically. Nebraska has had half its 50-man squad affected by the germ. But the disease apparently has run its course at Notre Dame and Oklahoma.

Micelli to Meet Isaac Logart In 10-Round Bout

DETROIT (AP)—Joe Micelli, a veteran of 89 fights who quit the game not long ago only to decide upon a comeback, gets a chance to knock Cuban Isaac Logart out of the top welterweight rankings tonight when the two fighters meet in a 10-rounder at Olympic Stadium.

Following a long string of defeats a couple of years ago, the 26-year-old New Yorker announced his retirement. It lasted only a short time and now Micelli is trying to get back among the top fighters in the division.

Recently Micelli knocked out former welterweight champion Johnny Saxton and the loser promptly announced his retirement. So far, Saxton has not changed his mind.

In the 22-year-old Logart, Micelli will meet a boxer who is only a fight or two away from the game's big money. Ranked No. 2 in the division, Logart is counted among the three or four men who may enter an elimination tournament to decide the successor to Carmen Basilio, who gave up his welterweight title when he took the middleweight crown away from Sugar Ray Robinson.

The bout will be nationally broadcast and telecast (NBC, 8 p. m. CST). Logart has won 50, lost 7 and engaged in 5 draws since he turned pro. Micelli's record is 54-28-7.

NEW YORK (AP) — We're approaching the week when the television networks make their biggest pitch of the new season.

Here are some of the special things on tap.
Britain's Queen Elizabeth II definitely will be TV's queen of the week. TV coverage begins with the arrival of the royal family in Ottawa tomorrow. Coverage of the Queen in Canada will continue Sunday and Monday. On Thursday you may view her arrival in Washington, D.C.
Sunday is quite a day. "Wide World" (NBC-TV) will try — and "try" must be emphasized — to glimpse the Russian satellite in a remote pickup from the University of Colorado's 11,320-foot high Coronagraph Station at Cimarron, Colo.

Three big, expensive special shows stand back to back Sunday. On NBC-TV Mickey Rooney, Walter Selzak and Fran Allison appear in a musical and verse adaptation of the fairy tale "Pinocchio."
On CBS-TV an automobile manufacturer presents a special variety show co-starring Frank Sinatra and Bing Crosby.
On NBC-TV an oil company comes up with another big 90-minute variety show. Tyrone Power will be master of ceremonies to a host of guests.
On Thursday "Hall of Fame" launches its new season on NBC-TV with "The Green Pastures." At the same time, CBS-TV will telecast a party which Mike Todd, and his wife, Elizabeth Taylor, are throwing for 18,000 persons in Madison Square Garden to celebrate the anniversary of his movie, "Around the World in 80 Days."

Next Friday evening ABC-TV adds another large splash to the variety show field when Metropolitan Opera soprano Patrice Mun-

Curson, 26, an insurance salesman, filed traffic charges against a motorcycle patrolman yesterday.
"I thought it was my right and my duty," he said after lodging his complaint against city patrolman D. I. Jordy in Corporation Court.
The complaint alleges Jordy ran a red light, made an illegal turn and passed another vehicle illegally.
Curson said that after he stopped the officer, Jordy searched his car. The patrolman said he found a night stick and charged Curson with carrying a prohibited weapon.
Before his release under $800 bond, Curson asserted he was

Man Loses Two Pairs Of Pants in a Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Bernard Bertan is glad he works for a trouser manufacturing company. He has lost two pairs of pants in a week to the same holdup man.

A week ago Bertan, 60, was entering the building on 5th Avenue where he is employed by the Well Made Trouser Co.

A voice behind him suddenly told him to "keep going" or I blow your brains out." The bandit marched Bertan to a stair landing, made him remove his trousers after handing over $31, threw the pants out an adjacent window, and escaped.

Yesterday it was the same old story, Bertan said: the same voice, the landing, trousers off and out the window. This time, however, Bertan had only $4 on him.

Presented Wrist Watch

Honor Mrs. Clair Koch
For Her Years of Service

REWARD FOR SERVICE—Mrs. Clair Koch receives a certificate and gold wrist watch from R. A. Malone, manager of Woolworth Store for her faithful service to the company for the past 25 years.

Mrs. Clair Koch, 1912 East Broadway, who has been with the Woolworth Co. in Sedalia for 25 years, was honored by the company last week when she was presented a beautiful wristwatch and a certificate for her faithful service to the company by R. A. Malone, manager.

Clair started at the counter at Woolworth's in mid October, 1932, under the management of W. R. Thornton, and she liked working at the counter, where she met many people and made many friends.

Then, about the time World War II started, she was transferred to the office. She is now cashier in the office where her duties include many things, the keeping of the books, the daily record and all that goes along with a business office. She thought she liked the counter work, but Clair found she liked this better. In fact, she has liked it so well she never even considered any other job. When you are perfectly satisfied with a job, says Clair, you never want anything else.

October seems to be her month because it was that month she chose to be married to William Koch. That was 17 years ago Oct. 4.

A native of Sedalia, she grew up here and received her education in the Sedalia schools. Her father is dead, but she still stays with her mother, Mrs. Fred Bender, Sr. When she was married, that was part of the plan, she just wasn't going to leave her mother. She has two brothers and one sister—all of them left Sedalia—but not Clair. When she is satisfied with things, she believes in leaving them just as they are, so she stayed in Sedalia because she liked it—didn't know anything else and had no desire to find out. She loved her home and her mother, so she didn't see any reason why she couldn't just stay there after she was married. She liked her job—so she has just kept right on with it 25 years and expects to continue on with it many more years.

Clair is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Broadway and Massachusetts, in which she has always been active.

National Leader
Will Be Speaker
For Local Group

Walter H. Meyer, presiding minister for Jehovah's Witnesses in Sedalia, informed the local congregation that Donald A. Confehr, circuit supervisor from the world headquarters in New York, would be delivering three Bible lectures this weekend.

Mr. Meyer also announced that Mr. Confehr will be assisting local witnesses in their house-to-house ministry service throughout this week.

On Saturday evening at 8 p.m. Mr. Confehr will address the entire congregation on "Constant Improvement in Our Ministry." Included in this talk will be the topic called "New Things Learned."

Climaxing the week's activity will be the public lecture entitled "Finding Happiness in a Troubled World" to be delivered by Mr. Confehr on Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. Following this there will be a study of the Watchtower article entitled "Healing of the Nations Has Drawn Near." Mr. Confehr then will conclude his visit with the Sedalia congregation by speaking on the topic "Recognizing Jehovah's Organization."

Work Will Continue On Jupiter and Thor

Funds Pose Big Problem For Missiles

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Defense Department announced today that work will continue on both the Jupiter and Thor missiles, and tests of them will be speeded up.

The Jupiter is an Army project and the Thor is the Air Force's. Both are intermediate range ballistic missiles, designed to travel 1,500 miles. There had been talk earlier of dropping one or the other.

Whether Russia's success in launching the first Earth satellite figured in the Jupiter-Thor decision was not mentioned. The Russians used a rocket of tremendous power to thrust the satellite into its orbit.

In view of the fact that current funds for the Jupiter program provide only for carrying it through December, the question was raised where the money would come from for continuing it.

A Defense Department spokesman replied that it would be the responsibility of the department to "find the money." He also said the Defense Department has lifted any restrictions on the Army for the use of overtime pay for men working on the project.

An announcement said that Secretary Neil McElroy had approved a recommendation by William M. Holaday, his special assistant for guided missiles, "to continue testing of the Jupiter and Thor intermediate-range ballistic missiles—IRBM—until a better technical basis is established for an IRBM program decision."

The decision to continue the testing of both missiles, probably for some months, resolved a question of whether to terminate one or merge both by the end of this year.

It was based on recommendations of a committee headed by Holaday. Serving with him on the committee were the two top missile experts of the services, Army Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris and Air Force Maj. Gen. B. A. Schriever.

A Defense Department spokesman, discussing the decision, said that he believed "the best interest of the country is to delay dropping either test until we can provide the best possible missile."

He said there will be an "acceleration" of the test programs for both of the 1,500-mile-range missiles.

Chrysler Corp. Plans To Build In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—The Chrysler Corp., announced today plans for building an automobile assembly plant here to replace a plant in Evansville, Ind.

W. C. Newberg, Chrysler automotive group vice president, said the new assembly plant is scheduled to be completed in the spring of 1959. The first cars to come off the line, he said, will be the 1960 Plymouths.

Newberg refused to say how much the assembly plant which will cover 1,300,000 square feet will cost. But, he did say it would employ around 3,500 workers.

Construction is expected to start soon.

Block Red Aggression

U. S. Will Stand By Treaty Obligations

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The United States bluntly told Soviet Communist chief Nikita Khrushchev tonight that it will stand by its treaty obligations to defend Turkey.

At the same time, the Eisenhower administration re-emphasized that it is "determined to carry out the national policy" of blocking any Red aggression in the Middle East.

The government's view was set forth in a formal State Department announcement read to reporters at a news conference.

The American statement advised Khrushchev to heed his own words that a modern war once started is difficult to confine to any particular locality.

"That truth should be prayerfully and constantly contemplated by every responsible official of every country," the statement said.

The American attitude was expressed in the form of comment on an interview Khrushchev gave to a New York Times reporter in Moscow.

In this interview, Khrushchev accused Secretary of State Dulles of trying to entice Turkey into war against Syria.

Khrushchev also contended in the interview that Deputy Undersecretary of State Loy Henderson, who visited the mid-East last month, had sought to incite certain Mid-East countries against Syria.

Quit Taking Fingerprints Of Visitors

15 Year Practice By United States Ordered Abolished

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The United States today abolished, with some few exceptions, its controversial requirement that all visitors from abroad be subjected to fingerprinting.

Secretary of State Dulles and Atty. Gen. Brownell, acting on authority given them by Congress a month ago, swept aside the practice of 15 years standing.

Dulles and Brownell ruled that in most cases foreigners visiting the United States for a year or less can be given visas without first submitting to fingerprinting.

The move seemed clearly aimed at meeting bitter protests from such countries as Russia which have denounced fingerprinting as a device to discourage visitors to the United States.

Soviet Communist chief Nikita Khrushchev bitterly complained about the fingerprinting requirement to President Eisenhower during the Geneva summit conference in 1955.

Khrushchev contended fingerprinting should be reserved for criminals. As long as the requirement remained, he said, Russians would refuse to visit the United States except under official passports which did not require fingerprinting.

The State Department in announcing the end of the requirement today said it would "on a basis of reciprocity." Visitors from Liberia, Peru and Ecuador will continue to be fingerprinted, officials said, until these countries abandon their fingerprinting practice.

Fingerprinting also may be required, it said, of visitors who arrive without visas of any kind shore leave and seasonal workers from Mexico.

Third Set of Twins Is Born to Couple

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 10.—A third set of twins was born at St. Mary's hospital here today to 26-year-old Mrs. Barbara Sharkey, who had given up childhood plans to be a nurse because "the work was too hard."

The births early today of 6-pound boys, Martin Joseph and Mitchell James, boosted the number of children in the Sharkey family to nine. The older children include: Helen, 8; Larry and Gerry, 7-year-old twins; Dennis, 5; Michael, 4; and Gail and Grey, 21-months-old twins. Their father Ramon, is a lithographer.

Old Sedalia Landmark To Get New Aluminum Front, Modern Roof

One of Sedalia's old landmarks will take on a new look soon. The building that now houses the Hillman Battery and Electric Service and Central Missouri Graphic Arts, in the 400 block of South Osage, is in the process of getting a face-lifting.

The third floor is being torn off and a flat roof put on. A new modern aluminum front will be installed along with other repairs to the building, Howard Hillman, owner of the building, stated that the interior will be remodeled in the future.

The building was built in 1895 when the area was still mostly residential by Dr. John R. Trader on the Trader home-site. According to information available, it was intended as a hospital but was never used for that purpose.

Grain Futures Mixed On Board of Trade

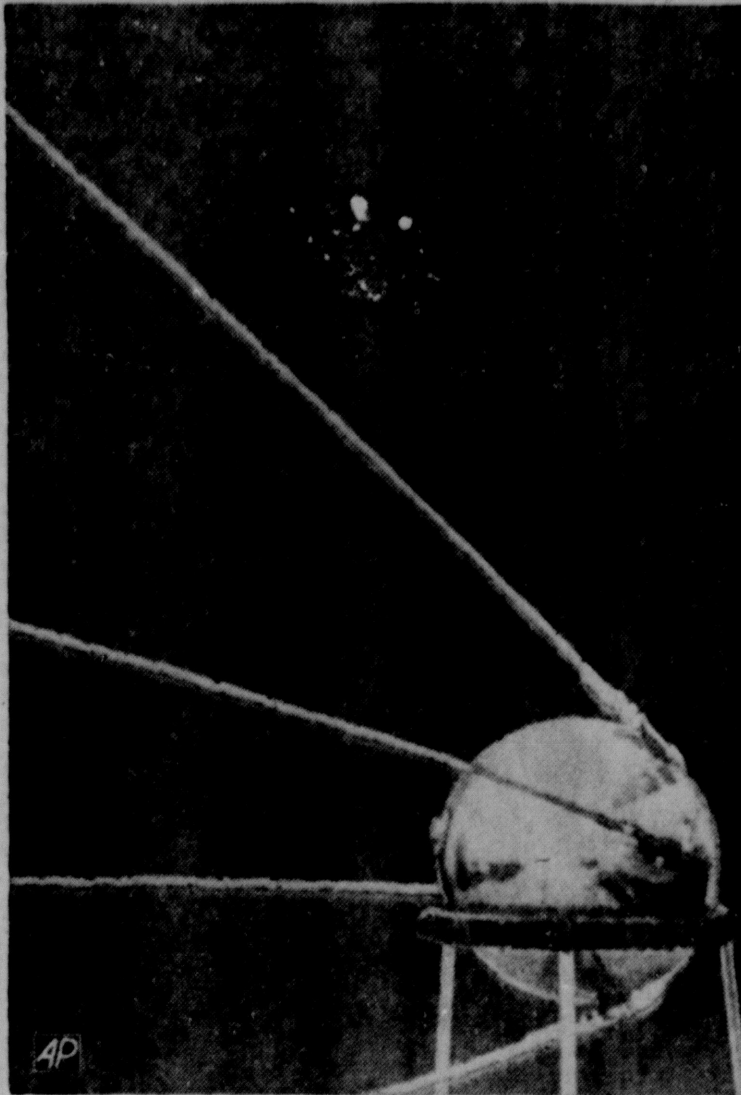

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Prices for grain futures ended mixed on the Board of Trade today.

Wheat and soybeans advanced a half cent or more while rye was off as much as a cent. Corn and oats finished at about the level of yesterday's closes.

New style wheat closed ½ to 1 cent higher, corn ¼ lower to ½ higher, oats unchanged to ¼ lower, rye ¼ to 1 cent lower and soybeans unchanged to ½ higher.

Wheat futures firmed on a pickup in export business and short covering. India purchased 3½ million bushels of U. S. Pacific Coast white wheat and was reported in the market for an additional 1,675,000 bushels. Poland took 700,000 bushels of U. S. mixed wheat for November shipment.

Rallies in corn were short-lived as hedge selling entered the market, reflecting Commodity Credit Corp sales of 1,015,000 bushels of the feed grain from government stocks to U. S. exporters at Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Recovered Records Show Scandalous Developments

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) declared today that scandalous and shocking situations developed in James R. Hoffa's election as president of the Teamsters Union.

What if anything may result from this latest charge by the senator remained to be seen.

McClellan said the Senate Rackets Investigation Committee, of which he is chairman, will continue its study of Hoffa and his union. Then he added:

"This is also a matter for the courts."

Hoffa was overwhelmingly elected president of the Teamsters in convention last week at Miami Beach, Fla., succeeding Dave Beck.

The Senate committee yesterday received a box full of records from the convention's Credentials Committee, Joseph Konow, secretary of the Credentials Committee, said the papers had been thrown out by a hotel maid, who later died.

But Konow said he believed substantially all of the records had been recovered.

McClellan, on the other hand, said the delivered records were so incomplete "as to be almost useless."

But even a preliminary examination of what was available, the senators said, "revealed a shocking situation . . . some situations which are just plain scandalous."

He said the Senate committee had found where Beck instructed the Credentials Committee to ignore the union constitution.

"Without this dictatorial action on the part of Mr. Beck, Mr. Hoffa—the candidate of his choosing, could not have been elected president of the Teamsters," McClellan said.

McClellan also said the constitution was clearly violated on two of its requirements: that delegations to the convention be selected before Sept. 1, and that this be done at a general membership meeting of the locals.

He specifically mentioned, in this connection, the choice of delegates from Local 107 in Philadelphia, Hoffa's own Local 299 in Detroit and the Detroit local of Bert Brennan, a Hoffa friend and a union vice president.

Symphony Concert Will Have Variety

A program ranging from Mozart to Rodgers and Hammerstein will be featured at the first concert of the year by the Sedalia Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Abe Rosenthal, at the Smith-Cotton High School auditorium Oct. 14.

Arabella Hong, lyric-coloratura, will be the guest artist. Miss Hong is one of the rapidly rising young concert artists appearing throughout the United States at the present time.

The program will consist of Adagio-Introduction, Menuetto Allegro, and Allegro spiritoso from "London Symphony" by Joseph Haydn. The orchestra will also present numbers from "South Pacific" before the intermission.

Rimsky-Korsakov's "Scheherazade" and Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 5" will be played by the symphony following the intermission.

US Offers to Enter Missile Control Talk

First Visual Fix

Rocket Overshadows The Earth Satellite

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Soviet earth satellite was outshone by its third-stage rocket in American skies today.

An observation team at New Haven, Conn., reported sighting the rocket, which gave the satellite the final thrust on its historic spin around the world at 5:23 a. m. EST.

Scientists credited the team with providing the first visual fix on the rocket in this country since last Friday's launching. Both the rocket and the radio-equipped globe it carried into the outer atmosphere are considered satellites as they orbit the earth.

Dr. J. Allen Hynek, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., said the rocket is larger than the globe and reflects a brighter light.

Hynek estimated the two satellites are about 700 miles apart, with the third-stage rocket in the lead because it has probably dropped to a smaller orbit.

"This is leading up to having two things to watch," he said. "They're just a few minutes apart now but we expect that distance to grow."

The National Security Council met for over two hours in Washington today and evidently reviewed the U. S. Missile and satellite programs.

As usual, the White House refused to give out any information on what took place at the meeting, presided over by President Eisenhower. But it was announced that in addition to the regular members of the top-level planning group the following were present:

Dr. Alan T. Waterman, director of the National Science Foundation; William M. Holaday, deputy assistant secretary of defense for missiles; Dr. John P. Hagen, director of Project Vanguard, the U. S. satellite project; Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, president of the National Academy of Science; Donald Quarles, deputy secretary of defense, and Harold E. Stassen, the President's disarmament specialist.

Sedalian Awarded $74,850 for Injury In Railroad Accident

EAST ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—A Sedalia, Mo., railroad worker was awarded $74,850 in city court here yesterday for the loss of three fingers in a work accident in June, 1955.

Leo Twenter, construction foreman for the Missouri Pacific Railroad, injured his hand while riding on a motorized handcar with other members of his construction crew.

The car and a similar car collided and in the wreck several railroad torpedoes exploded, injuring Twenter. The accident occurred near Napton, Mo.

Twenter had asked a $75,000 verdict. He was awarded the $74,850 by a city court jury after a three-day trial. The jury deliberated an hour.

Meteorite Fragments Are Hitting Satellite

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Moscow radio said tonight that meteorite fragments high in outer space are crashing into the Soviet satellite but apparently causing no serious damage.

Holaday and the new secretary of defense, Neil McElroy, are scheduled to meet with Eisenhower tomorrow morning just before the weekly Cabinet session.

The Soviet satellite has now been aloft for six days. Moscow radio said it completed its 78th journey around the earth at about 10 p. m. EST last night and has traveled an estimated 2,190,000 miles.

Integration Issue Is In A Deadlock

Ike Won't Withdraw Troops; Faubus Will Not Compromise

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 10.—The Central High School racial integration crisis subsided today into a silent deadlock.

Gov. Orval Faubus stood firm on his stand that no compromise is in sight unless nine Negro students are withdrawn from integrated Central classrooms.

President Eisenhower has refused to withdraw regular Army troops and federalized Arkansas National Guardsmen from the school until he is satisfied that the court-endorsed Central High integration plan will be enforced by local authorities.

Both of them reaffirmed their positions yesterday. Eisenhower said he is hopeful it will soon be possible to withdraw the troops.

The six Negro girls and three boys were all in class today. As they have been since arrival of the troops, they were escorted on the campus by a detachment of guardsmen.

Eisenhower sent the soldiers in Sept. 24, the day after white adult mobs rioted outside the school. The rioting followed withdrawal of the guardsmen by Faubus, after they had kept the Negroes out of Central High for the better part of a month.

Faubus yesterday showed newsman photographs which he said depicted soldiers and officers "sauntering through the shorts-clad high school girls during their gym class." He said he regarded this as indiscreet on the part of the troops.

Shorts-clad girls again went through gym classes on the playgrounds back of the school during the day. A few soldiers and officers went about duties in the immediate vicinity, without, however, seeming to draw any attention from the girls.

One of the Negro girls, Carlotta Walls, 14, was the pitcher for one of the two teams engaged in a shrill softball game. The white girls exorted her by name as she pitched. She, in turn, slapped several of the white girls on their backs in congratulatory fashion for base hits or good fielding plays.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Two leading Russian scientists said today their government will certainly share the scientific data it gathers from the historic flight of the satellite Sputnik.

Lodge Says We Must Not Miss Chance

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 10.—(P)—The United States offered today to enter immediately into multi-national talks on control of outer space missiles. The offer was ignored by the Soviet Union, which accused the West of trickery in disarmament negotiations.

U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge warned the United Nations "we must not miss this chance" to harness for peace outer space missiles "which can blow us to bits."

But Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, speaking after Lodge in the U. N.'s 82-nation Political Committee, made no specific mention of control of missiles. He declared the Western Powers are "still unwilling to reach any agreement."

He added: "For that reason we call upon the governments of the United States, Britain and France to accept an honest and mutually acceptable agreement. It is time to put trickery aside and stop making a good face when the game is lost."

Gromyko made only brief reference to the intercontinental missile which the Soviet Union now claims as part of its arsenal. He called attention to the growing power of atomic and hydrogen bombs and the appearance of "intercontinental weapons, capable of reaching any objective on earth."

The Soviet foreign minister delivered one of his toughest U. N. speeches in recent years. He rejected the Western proposals put forth at the London talks of the U. N. Disarmament subcommittee, and stood on previous Soviet proposals which put priority on immediate and unconditional abolition of tests of nuclear weapons.

Lodge declared that outer space missiles, "like atomic energy, can serve the purpose of peace or it can be used to blow us to bits."

He recalled that the United States proposed in 1946, when it alone had nuclear weapons, that atomic energy be put under international control.

Lodge added: "The world knows now that a decade of anxiety and trouble could have been avoided if that plan had been accepted. We now have a similar opportunity to harness for peace man's new pioneering efforts in outer space. We must not miss this chance."

Lodge added that the United States has proposed the setting up of a technical committee to work out an inspection system to assure that objects sent into outer space serve exclusively peaceful and scientific purposes.

Rats Can Take Large Portion Of Stored Crop

Missouri farmers can't afford to feed corn to rats, but chances are that's where a goodly portion of your stored crop will go this year, if crabs and bins aren't rat-proof.

Ten rats can eat as much corn as a market hog and the loss from rats can amount to as much as one-fourth or even one-third of your stored grain. This loss is enough to pay for rat-proofing several times over.

If you have a steel grain bin with metal or concrete floor there's little chance rats will bother stored corn. If your corn crib is wooden, here's some suggestions from University of Missouri extension agronomists to make that wooden crib rat-proof.

Openings larger than one-half inch in diameter should be covered with woven wire mesh or hardware cloth, don't forget drainage spouts and other small pipes.

Foundation walls need to extend at least 18 inches below the ground since rats can dig one and one-half feet under buildings. For further insurance, floor the crib with concrete or hardware cloth on the crib bottom.

Surround the entire crib with wire netting to a height of two feet and top with a strip of galvanized metal eight inches to a foot wide. Remember, rats can jump as high as 36 inches.

The Detroit River sometimes is called the "Dardanelles" of the Midwest.

Accurate Records Help Production, Decrease Costs

Increase milk production, decrease feed costs. That's always of prime concern to Missouri's dairymen. And it's being done by many dairy farmers by the use of accurate records, say University of Missouri extension dairymen.

Exact dairy records help you to know your herd, know the production of each cow, know which animals aren't doing their share of the job. You can see which cows are loafers and should be eliminated from your operation.

With good records you know whether or not your herd sire is the quality you want. You'll know which animals to select for brood cows and which heifers should be chosen for herd replacements.

By the use of accurate records, you can decide how to improve the feeding and management on your farm for the most efficient operation possible.

In short, you'll know, not guess, just how much each dairy animal is helping you in your operation.

In a recent Missouri Extension Service bulletin, extension dairymen list ten suggestions to increase your dairy business.

A dairyman's judgment is no better than his information, make your operation pay, keep an accurate set of records.

Back Home After Visit

Linda Turner Finds American Life Easier Than in Germany

Back home again Linda Turner, who spent several weeks in Germany as an American Field Service Student, is trying to catch her breath. She missed out a little on the start of school, everybody wants to know about her stay in Metting, Germany.

In the first place, although she would have liked staying a little longer, Linda came home feeling glad she was an American. Life here is a lot easier, she thinks, and she wonders if Americans really get as much out of life as they should.

Linda arrived in Metting at midnight and the next day was the Fourth of July, but it didn't seem like it, she said, because there was no celebration. After all, the Fourth of July meant nothing to those people, but it still meant a lot to Linda.

It was hot, so Linda's family where she made her home during the time went to the field at 3 o'clock in the morning so they wouldn't have to work in the hot sun during the afternoon. It was harvest time, too, and the family worked in the fields. Most of the farmers cut the wheat by hand, she said, but her family had more than the average family, so they had two tractors and a binder. They then stored the wheat in the barn for all winter and when they needed some money, they threshed the wheat and sold it. They had an old threshing machine, but, said Linda, it did the job.

Of course, that first day Linda didn't go to the fields to work with the family but later she did — just for a day or two. The family decided she got in the way more than she helped, so they told her to stay in the house. Growing up on a farm in Missouri, Linda was probably a better farmer than she pretended to be, but the farming was different, at least the woman's part in it. She wasn't used to going out and doing a man's job on the farm all the time, which was what the girls did there.

A typical day on the farm there, Linda said, was getting up and going to feed the cows at 5 o'clock in the morning. They had no fences and had to mow the hay for the cows. Then they came in for a cup of coffee, then they milked the cows after which they had another cup of coffee, and went out to the fields.

Linda found she had quite a job staying in the house when four fellows who were electricians stayed there two weeks. It meant 13 beds to make. Her biggest problem was changing the pillow cases. The pillows were so big she felt like she had been wrestling with a bear when she got through. She did the dish washing, too, which wasn't any little job with a family that big and she did the clothes washing. The washing is done by hand in a fashion new to Linda. They put the clothes on a piece of wood and take a brush to them. The only thing that she didn't have to do by hand was the wringing. There was some kind of machine that shirled the water out of the clothes.

The family would come in from the fields at 11 and go back at noon. They would then work until about 3 p.m. Linda and Johanna, 10, the youngest girl in the family, would fix bread, bologna and beer. They didn't drink water or milk and they thought she was crazy because she was always drinking water.

"I just couldn't cultivate a taste for beer," said Linda, for which, no doubt her American parents are very grateful.

Then they went to the fields again and stayed until about 7:30 or 8. Hedi, the oldest girl in the family would come in about 5:30 and milk the cows. On week days they had supper and coffee then went to bed. Metting, a town of about 200 people, was sound asleep by 9 o'clock.

The food they eat is mostly starches — noodles, gravy, potatoes and meat. They hardly ever had vegetables except cucumbers. When they did have vegetables they didn't have them with their dinner. They eat a lot of bread, she said, with sugar, chocolate and other things on it.

They use every part of the pig, and they use the feet and head of the duck to make gravy.

The people in her family, in Germany, Linda said, had a lot of misunderstandings about America. They thought everybody had two or three cars and thought you could still homestead here. Two of the boys in the family were planning on coming over and getting themselves a piece of land here, but Linda put them straight. The country, she said, was so pretty, and the forest, which is mostly pine trees, with a few oaks, are kept trimmed. The stores are similar to ours, said Linda, but there is a store for bread, another for meat, and you buy vegetables in carts on the street. Wool clothing is cheap.

It was cold there, part of the time, and they had no heat in the bedrooms, and heated the living room with a wood stove. They also cooked with wood.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday they had dances. The teenagers, said Linda, were a lot like ours, only they had more responsibility. No teenagers drove cars. Among the boys she met was one with a motorcycle, which was fun except when it was raining and cold—there were three straight weeks of rain.

Education was a serious business there, and they were out of school at 15. The boys in her family went to a trade school. They had to have a training course even to be a clerk, said Linda.

The girls don't meet the boys, because they go to separate schools, until they go to dancing school. Everybody goes to dancing school, so they start going with boys much later, and the usual age of marriage is 25 years old.

The family Linda lived with was crazy about popcorn. In fact, the things they wanted Linda to send them were American cigarettes, coffee and popcorn. They have to grind their own coffee there. The thing Linda missed most was the American hamburger—but she was able to get one one day from the PX.

Hedi fell in love with all of Linda's clothes, and bought material and had some dresses made like hers.

There were no 4-H organizations there, Linda said.

She saw a big parade with floats like the Christmas parade here, and enjoyed the big tent where all the families would go together and sit for hours. They would eat, drink, sing and talk. Then there was the Folk Fest, which is something like the State Fair, with rides and a carnival and exhibits of farm machinery, and other exhibits like the Fair.

The schools last ten months, the are no sports. The young people are not as carefree as the Americans.

Linda thinks Hedi is coming over here for a visit one of these days and she hopes so — she wants to show her what America is like.

The people all want the unification of Germany and have a great fear of the Communists. The elections are different from here. Nothing can be printed in the paper about them until after they are over.

Linda wouldn't take anything for the memories of her trip and she is very grateful to the Sedalia Chapter, American Association of University Women, for the part they played in making it possible for her to go.

Stock Market Suffers Sharpest Decline In Years

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The stock market suffered its sharpest break in two years today, erasing almost five billion dollars in quoted values of stocks.

Brokers were unable to pinpoint any single reason for the break. Generally, they blamed the bearish outlook in business including reports of layoffs and cutbacks, and the ominous picture in the Middle East.

Key issues were battered down $1 to $9 a share. Biggest losses were in oils, aircrafts, steels, chemicals and nonferrous metals.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined $4 to $159.70, its biggest loss since Oct. 10, 1955, shortly after President Eisenhower's heart attack.

The Dow Jones industrial plunged 9.69 to 441.71, its largest decline since two years ago today.

Trading was heavy despite the tense World Series game, which ordinarily would have been expected to curtail turnover during the afternoon. Volume rose to 3,300,000 shares from yesterday's 2,120,000 shares. The high-speed ticker tape lagged behind in reporting transactions during a mid-day selloff.

Gulf Oil dropped $9.12 a share to $107.50. Other big losers included Amerasia, off $5.75 at $101; Baltimore & Ohio $4 at $38.37; Zenith $4 at $108; Allied Chemical $2.75 at $72.75; United Aircraft $3.75 at $53.25; Goodyear $3 at $62; Youngstown Sheet & Tube $2.75 at $80 and Chrysler $1.87 at $71.

Only Two Hurt As Gas Storage Tanks Explode

EL DORADO, Ark., Oct. 10.—Exploding gas storage tanks hurled flame and debris 500 feet into the air today as a spectacular fire swept the bulk plant of the Johnson Oil Co. here.

Three tanks, with capacities of 10,000-12,000 gallons, either exploded or burst under intense heat of the damaging fire which raged out of control for nearly two hours.

Flames leaped across a street and destroyed a residence and an automobile before firemen got the blaze in hand.

Two company employees suffered slight burns. A fire department official said it was "miraculous" that someone was not killed.

Three of the company's six storage tanks, three trucks and some of the pumping facilities were destroyed. Company offices were scorched but did not catch fire.

No damage estimate was immediately available. Reed Johnson and Bill Johnson, owners of the distributing company, were on a hunting trip in Colorado.

The fire started when a 12,000-gallon tank overflowed as high octane gasoline was being pumped into it from a transport truck.

Mose Wright an employee, said he tried to shut off the pump but the whole area suddenly was engulfed in flames when he closed an electrical switch.

Code Against Hard Liquor Advertising May Be Challenged

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 10.—A television official warned today that the industry's traditional voluntary ban on hard liquor advertising may be challenged by some advertisers.

Edward H. Bronson, director of Television Code Affairs for the National Assn. of Radio and Television Broadcasters, cited two recent instances he described as attempts to circumvent the code's rules on hard liquor advertising.

Speaking at a regional meeting of the association, Bronson said one was an attempt to gain acceptance of so-called mixer advertising which extolled the merits of a Vermouth as a cocktail mix.

The other effort, he told a meeting of television broadcasters, was to utilize prominently in a wine commercial the name of a firm best known for its distilled product.

Under the code, beer and wine may be advertised but liquor may not.
